About Special Education

Students in the B.S./B.A. in Special Education program will be prepared to work with children with emotional disturbances, learning disabilities, autism, and intellectual disabilities. They provide effective methods and strategies as well as individual support to students, families, and general education teachers.

A bachelor's degree in special education prepares students not only for teaching but also job opportunities in hospitals, mental health centers, recreation programs, and other state and community agencies.

UNLV Academic Advising for Special Education Majors:

Academic Advisors are eager to meet with students about their academic goals and to assist in constructing a plan for graduation. Advisors can also help students understand how their experiences at UNLV can lead to a career in their desired field. Go online to schedule an appointment with your advisor today!
